

Washington has strawberries and four-teen inches of snow at the same time.

The summing up of the coal mine disaster is 27 widows and 108 orphan children.

Chicago would give moral reform a grand good start if it would only indict the mayor.

Pistols and poison should be put on the same footing, and the Legislature of Wisconsin is leading off in the reform.

While the South and the East are having snow storms and cold weather, the North is having a temperature that would do honor to April.

The Democrats can't make Tilden sick enough to keep him out of the Presidential race. He still haunts the other Democratic aspirants for the Presidency like the "Old Man of the Sea."

There are complaints in Grant county the wolves and foxes are a serious annoyance to farmers in that section, and the Herald complains of the unjust insinuation by the press of the State that they are bred for scalping and bounty purposes.

The late Clarkson N. Potter left his widow $150,000 in money and his residence in New York, and all his personal property. His daughters get about $125,000 each, the latter receiving, also, valuable country residences.

When the Democrats are out of power they are very fast to run into economical streaks. They want to reduce the salary of Congressmen and other officers with the hope that this movement may give a little life to the Democratic corpse. That game is too transparent to take.

The venerable Peter Cooper will be 91 years old next Sunday. He was born in the city of New York, and at that time it only had 27,000, and his mother was born on the spot where St. Paul's church now stands. Mr. Cooper has lived under the administration of all the Presidents.

Mr. Charles Reed will have nothing more to do with the Guttenau case. He declares that he is horrified at the cold-blooded talk of Scoville about the proposition to exhibit Guttenau's body at so much per head. He declines to do anything further in the case, and will not even make an argument for a new trial.

The man in a superlative residence has struck Boston. The home of General C. A. Whittemore on Beacon street, will cost two million dollars. It will have walls ninety-five feet high and twenty inches thick and from fifty to fifty-five rooms, also the largest wine cellar in the country. On the fourth floor is a great music room with a grand pipe organ.

The court in banc will meet in Washington in April and will then decide whether Guttenau will hang as Judge Cox has ordered. There is not even a glimmer of hope that the assassin will be granted a new trial. All the resources of the law have been exhausted in his case and the hanging will take place according to the published programme.

Quang Wing, the well known Chinese commissioner and associate minister, proposes to become a permanent resident in this country. He has just left Hartford on his way to China, where he has been summoned to report upon the work he has accomplished here. He was the originator and successful conductor of the Chinese Educational Mission.

The other day the Grand Jury of the criminal court of Chicago made a presentation that the mayor of that city, "Our Carter," was guilty of a violation of the law and ordinances by shielding gamblers. Then the Journal asks: Why didn't they indict him outright? The chief official of a great city who deliberately violates the law is less excusable than the ordinary citizen, and deserves to be punished to the full extent of the legal penalty.

It was stated in the Gazette the other day that a large delegation had gone from Chicago to St. Louis to witness the prize fight, and on the subject the Inter Ocean pertinently remarks: "Chicago should be very proud of her official representation at the prize fight. The only further honor that could be conferred upon the city council would be to have one of its members selected to hold the bottle at New Orleans."

The citizens of Ottawa, Illinois, do not trifle with the question of a woman's virtue. A jury in that place gave a young lady $50,000 damages for an outrage committed upon her by a physician while under professional treatment. There may be some question as to the justice of the verdict, and an appeal may probably reduce the amount, but the result is an indication of the indignation that is felt at the conduct of a physician who will take advantage of the sacred confidence which is imposed in him by a patient to gratify his passions.

An absurd sensational report has been started that a large number of clergymen of the State, by neglecting to comply with a law requiring them to file a copy of their credentials of ordination with the clerk of the circuit court of the county in which they reside, are disqualified to solemnize marriages, and that, in consequence, the marriage ceremonies performed by them are void. A writer in the Milwaukee Republican shows that the report is groundless, and says there need not be any alarm that the marriages thus performed are void. He says "the whole matter is one of distinguishing between the contract and the evidence of the contract. The probable object of the statutes is to provide for evidence of an official and documentary character. Credentials should be registered in some county (not necessarily in that of residence) and that county indorsed on certificates and filed, that the chain of evidence may be officially complete. But all marriages entered into in good faith by either party are valid, no matter what the minister has failed to do in formal matters."

LEGISLATURE.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, Feb. 7.—Both Houses had a session this morning. Senator Wing's bill to punish murder in the first degree by death, was made a special order for eleven o'clock to-morrow morning.

ASSEMBLY.

In the Assembly a hot debate was had over church taxation. The bill was finally referred to the committee on State affairs.

A bill was introduced appropriating $200,000 for the erection of a State historical building.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning.

THE PRIZE RING.

The Governor of Mississippi Orders Out the Shotgun.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 7.—The Sullivan-Ryan prize fight took place today forty miles from this city, near the Mississippi line. Special trains on the Louisville and Nashville roads carried immense crowds. The train was delayed, and did not reach the scene till ten o'clock. Many backed out because the Governor of Mississippi had issued a proclamation ordering the sheriff to disperse the fighters with shot-guns, if necessary. Madden and Gross were Sullivan's seconds, and Kelly and Roach Ryan's seconds. Ryan entered the ring at noon, and a further delay of half an hour took place in choosing referees. Alexander Brewster, of this city, and Jack Hardy, of Vicksburg, were selected.

Sullivan drew the first blood in the second round, and in the third round Ryan threw Sullivan down and in the fourth round Sullivan knocked Ryan down, and at the ninth round Sullivan was declared victor, taking the purse of $5,000 and the champion's belt.

PRESIDENTS' WIDOWS.

Report of the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Senate committee on pensions, in reporting the bill giving Mrs. Garfield a pension of $5,000, give the following reasons for placing the widows of Presidents Tyler and Polk on the list at the same rate:

In April, 1873, Julia Gardner Tyler, widow of John Tyler, formerly President of the United States, appealed to Congress to allow her a pension on account of her poverty. In December, 1880, her prayer was granted, and she was allowed the sum of $1,200 per annum. Your committee has been informed from reliable sources that the sum allowed Mrs. Tyler is her sole means of support. Your committee has also been informed that Mrs. Sarah Childress Polk, widow of James K. Polk, ex-President of the United States, is, at an advanced age, living in the State of Tennessee, without a sufficient income to support her in the condition that she has heretofore lived, and not in such a condition as a woman who has been the wife of the Chief Magistrate of the United States is expected to live. It is painful to contemplate the fact that the widows of these illustrious men, who have served the country in such high capacity, should be in straitened circumstances in their old age, and your committee are of the opinion that the entire people of the United States will heartily approve a measure that shall put them beyond want. Your committee therefore report the accompanying bill as a substitute for senate bill No. 876, with a recommendation that it do pass.

ANTI-POLYGAMY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Democrats were caught napping in the House today. The result was the first stunning blow that polygamy ever received at the hands of Congress. It was bill day, and a much larger number of measures were introduced than was expected, it being supposed that almost all the original measures had been put in, but as the call of the States progressed they came in a perfect deluge. The afternoon wore on drearily, and members scattering about the committee rooms, or left for the departments, until not two-thirds of the House was present. It had been kept very quiet that the Speaker was to recognize Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, as soon as the call of the States was done, to ask unanimous consent to put his anti-polygamy bill on its passage. There are two ways to make such a motion. One is to move the suspension of the rules, and then move the passage of the bill under suspension of the rules. Burrows chose the latter. When he did so Bragg, of Wisconsin, rose with an amendment, but did not offer it waiting until the vote should be taken to suspend the rules. The vote was taken viva voce, and then Bragg called for a second. When there is a second each side has fifteen minutes, for debate, and then Bragg proposed to offer his amendment as the basis of filibustering, or to load down and defeat the bill. To his chagrin, he was informed by the speaker that he was too late. The passage of the motion to suspend the rules in the form it was put had also passed the bill. The Democrats who had not voted all on the motion, deeming it not the main point at issue, were dumfounded, and the Republicans laughed.

ALLEGED MURDERERS.

MADISON, Feb. 6.—The trial of Edward and Mary Garry, charged with murder, was commenced in the Circuit Court to-day. The details of this case are very singular, and the guilt of the parties depends upon purely circumstantial evidence. Defendants are husband and wife, and have been married but a short time. Mrs. Garry, while a maiden, gave birth to a child in the Dane county poor house, and when the babe was three days old, Edward Garry came to the hospital and took her and the child away. In a few days he married the mother, but the child had disappeared. The defense claims that the child died on the way from the poor house, and was quietly buried. The prosecution will endeavor to prove that the defendants murdered their illegitimate offspring.

CAPT. EDWARD FERGUSON.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 6.—A private dispatch from Washington to-night stated that the President had signed the appointment of Capt. Edward Ferguson as pension agent for the district composed of Minnesota and Wisconsin, and that the appointment would go to the Senate for confirmation on next day.

PARALYSIS.

MADISON, Feb. 6.—William Lysaught, of Belleville, this State, well known in Chicago, and the Northwest as the largest stock-raiser in Wisconsin, returned from Chicago Saturday night, and on Sunday morning was found in an unconscious condition in his barn yard. It was thought at first that he had been foully dealt with, but later it was thought it might be a stroke of paralysis. He is still unconscious.

A GOOD JOB.

BEDFORD, Ind., Feb. 6.—Last night at Tunnelton, ten miles southeast of here, three burglars who attempted to rob the saloon of Thomas Clark, were killed. A confederate of the burglars, Ben Willoughby, gave them away in the morning, and ample provision has been made for giving a warm reception to the names of the men killed are: Virgil Wilson, Nick Vaughan, and S. Whitted. They all belonged in the vicinity, and has been under suspicion for a long time.

WHY HE DIDN'T SEE THE PLAY.

I sat behind her at the play. (They said it was "The Play") But who appeared, or how "twas done— Well, ask some other fellow.

I know an overture was played (The same they played last season), And, later, people cried "Encore!" (I do not know the reason.)

I heard a sweet, entreating voice, A stifled shriek, a groan—a Short silence, that I take it, marked The death of Desdemona.

But this was all; I simply write These lines as a reminder To some one, that I lost the play Because I sat behind her. (It was the hat.)

TRICKS OF JEWELRY THIEVES.

Some Cunning Devices—Loss and Recovery of Diamonds—Workings of the Protective Union—A Gossamer Thief-Catcher.

Dealers in jewelry are particularly exposed to losses from thieves and swindlers, as their goods, more than those of any other tradesmen or manufacturers, contain great marketable value in a small compass, and therefore afford special temptations to the dishonest.

The thieves, both male and female, who are frequently of very good appearance, hang about the jewelers' stores until they see some respectable-looking person enter, and then go in with them. They usually say that some friend advised them to come to that store to look at a particular line of goods, and they commonly ask for some standard article. Then, if they can get some young and inexperienced clerk to wait upon them—and they always try to get served by a salesman of that kind—the chances are that they will carry away with them a great deal more in value than they buy. Sometimes they buy nothing, but usually they make some small purchase, so as to cover up their game more effectively.

The "umbrella trick" was a very successful device of the thieves a few years ago, but is now pretty well known to the trade, and is therefore but little practiced at present. Before its secret was detected a well-dressed thief would enter a store with an umbrella in his hand, closed, but not rolled up. He was usually accompanied by one or two confederates. Seating themselves by the counter, they would ask to be shown a variety of certain goods, and in passing the articles from one to another the principal would dexterously drop one now and then within the loose folds of his umbrella. When a number of stones, rings, or bracelets had thus been stowed away, the man with the now valuable umbrella would suddenly remember an engagement, and bid good-by to his companions, who would cover his retreat by buying some trifling ornament.

Some years ago a clever rogue was successful in robbing several diamond merchants in this city of costly gems, having equipped himself by smearing a little wax on the end of his nose and providing a number of handkerchiefs in his pockets. He was further prepared by wearing spectacles, and appeared to be very near-sighted. When a package of small uncut diamonds was shown to him, at his request, he would take it to the window, and hold it very close to his face. Simultaneously he would bring the end of his nose against a diamond and make use of a handkerchief to conceal and remove the stone which had adhered to the wax. By affecting to have a bad cold, and always using a different handkerchief, he was able to abstract a number of stones from the same package.

His last operation of this sort had an unsuccessful ending through his mistake in taking out a handkerchief which he had used already. A diamond fell from it and rolled upon the floor. Hoping that this was unnoticed, but not daring to remain, he hastily excused himself and went to the door, but found it securely fastened. One of the firm of diamond dealers, by pressing an electric button under his table, had shot a bolt at the entrance, and when the thief turned around a revolver was pointed at his head. He was obliged to submit to a search, and a number of diamonds were found in the handkerchiefs distributed through his clothing. His arrest followed, and he was sent to State Prison.

After this a man with a cane executed a theft very neatly in a New York diamond house. Pointing over a counter with his cane at an open package of unmounted stones, and asking to be shown a certain one, he lightly touched a gem with the end of the stick, which had been dipped in some glutinous cement to the tip, and the thief gave up undetected. Some time afterward, however, he was caught while attempting the same trick in Philadelphia, and was identified by his New York victim.

Recently one of the "box men," or drummers who travel for small jewelry factories in Providence or Attleboro, called at a well-known jewelry store here, and was so gratified at his pleasant reception by one of the firm, who happened to be in a particularly good humor, that he set his box down on the floor and entered into conversation without immediately proceeding to business. When he turned to take up his box it was missing, and he has never seen it since. Undoubtedly a thief had walked into the place "on speculation," and, seeing the unguarded box, had quietly walked out with it. Its contents were worth several hundred dollars, although most of the articles were of only six to ten karat gold.

Sometimes the thieves adopt bolder methods. Within the last fortnight a man entered a jewelry store in Maiden Lane, and, after looking at a number of gold watch-chains, suddenly snatched three of them and dashed out of the door. A hue-and-cry was instantly raised, and a number of persons began running. The thief ran into a "pal" on the sidewalk, and knocked him down, transferring the chains in the scuffle. When seized and accused of the robbery he indignantly denied the charge and begged to be searched. He said that he had merely run in pursuit of the real offender. As he had got rid of the stolen articles, and as no one could positively identify him, he was released. His confederate, of course, had lost no time in disappearing.

Fastening the door of a jewelry store on the outside by means of a cord, and then smashing the show window, forms a method of robbery so extremely bold and dangerous that it is rarely attempted at present, although some years ago it was not very uncommon. Some of our readers may remember the ingenious effort once made to rob a Broadway jeweler's window which projected over the sidewalk. At night a thief cut a hole in the bottom of the window, and neatly plugged it up again. The next day he had a well-trained dog crawl under the window, and, by means of a long wire with a hook on the end, pull down through the hole a number of gold chains, etc. The trick was defeated, by the investigations of a salesman, after he had been astonished to see chains and bracelets creeping about in the window as if endowed with life.

A few seasons ago a certain downtown jeweler determined to turn the tables and cheat the thieves. He got together a lot of old rubbish which had been designed to look like gold, and had the chains, etc., newly dipped and polished. The articles were such goods as the alleged rolled plate Roman gold bracelets, which are not rolled plate at all, but simply German silver dipped in a plating solution. When visited at that holiday time by customers whom his experienced eye recognized as probable thieves, he would lay before them a quantity of this special stock, tell them to make their selection, and carelessly turn his back. The trap was successful, and quantities of the trash were carried away before the end of the holidays. One thief was so disgusted that he wrote a letter to the jeweler, telling him that if his goods were a fair sample of those in the neighborhood, the shopkeepers were worse thieves than any in the "profession."

Sometimes the thieves who visit jewelry stores rob a customer instead of the proprietor. About two years ago a banker in Wall Street gave to his wife a large sum of money, some $4,000 or $5,000, for the purchase of a set of diamonds. He took her to a jeweler's, introduced her, and then hurried away to some business. The lady placed her pocketbook, containing the money, inside her muff, and laid the latter on the counter while she examined an assortment of gems. Meanwhile a very well dressed young man took a seat by the counter near her, and looked at some rings, finally purchasing one for about thirty dollars, and leaving the place. When the lady looked for her pocketbook she was overwhelmed by the discovery that her muff was empty. The young man was doubtless a professional thief who had entered the store to "take chances," and was probably as much surprised as gratified when he ascertained the amount of his "haul."

Persons who are in the habit of handling valuable goods are apt, in time, to grow careless in regard to them, and therefore diamonds are sometimes lost through gross negligence, as well as by thieves. A few years ago a broker in gems lost a fine pair of diamonds, valued at $5,000, while on his way to a customer in Wall street. They were advertised, and a few days afterward a lawyer reported that he had found the jewels in the possession of his office-boy, who had picked them up in the street, and, ignorant of their value, had been using them for jack-stones. The recent case in John street will be generally remembered, where a little Italian bootblack picked up a package of twenty-one small diamonds, valued at $2,000, and sold them to a jeweler for a dollar. The purchaser immediately advertised them, and for days was visited by all sorts of "franks," who pretended that they had lost diamonds, and made desperate guesses when asked to describe the stones and their wrapping. The diamonds were in fact folded up in a paper packet, such as is always used for the purpose by dealers, on the outside of which was a complete memorandum of its contents. This proved to the custodian of the gems that they had been lost by some one in the trade, and the owner finally appeared and identified them. The bootblack was then sought out and suitably rewarded.

Some years since a diamond dealer here picked up an unset stone, worth about $800, with a pair of steel nippers, and as he turned it about to examine it closely he happened to press the nippers in such a way that the gem flew out. A careful search was made, but the diamond had vanished as completely as if it had changed into air. For days and weeks afterward the search was resumed at intervals; all the sweepings of the store were preserved, and not even a scrap of paper was thrown away. Finally, the last hope of ever finding the stone was abandoned, and its value set down to "profit and loss." The next winter, when the diamond dealer was about to put on a heavy overcoat which he had worn the previous season he noticed a little rip near the velvet collar. As he was about to hand it to his wife, and ask her to take a stitch in it, he chanced to feel a small, hard substance in the skirt of the coat, between the cloth and the lining. A little ripping was done, and the long-lost diamond was revealed. At the time the stone flew into the defective seam the coat was hanging up on the wall of the store.

The salesman who traveled for jewelry houses, and who frequently carries in their trunks large quantities of valuable goods, used often to be robbed at hotels, or by thieves changing the checks for their luggage. Of course they are liable to robbery now, but the danger of it has been much diminished since the formation, about three years ago, of the Jewelers' Protective Union, which has inspired the thieves with a wholesome dread of its powers. This organization, which includes all the principal dealers in the United States who employ traveling salesmen, has about $70,000 in its treasury, and has already been the means of sending eight thieves to State Prison. It is supported by dues proportioned to the number of travelers which each firm employs, and it is prepared to spend any amount of money necessary to hunt down and convict the thief who robs one of its members. Whenever a salesman starts out on a business tour, his name and route are reported to the President of the Union, who in turn notifies a detective agency which has branches in all the principal cities.

To protect traveling salesmen who have valuables with them in sleeping cars, alarm-watches have been invented, which make a startling noise when any package attached to them is disturbed. As a rule, however, such salesmen depend more for security upon "sleeping with one eye open" than upon any artificial aids of this sort. An invention has just been made by a well-known scientific man in France that may prove a valuable protection against the robbery of jewelry trunks in hotels. It is a trunk made with a galvanic battery under a false bottom, and so constructed, it is said, that when it is "used" for the purpose, a thief can not touch the lock or any metal-work about the trunk without receiving a terrific shock, by which he will be temporarily paralyzed. He not only can not continue his attempt at robbery, but will be riveted to the trunk until some one comes and relieves him by arrest. The rightful owner can open the trunk at any time without danger, by using a key which is a non-conductor and breaks the electric circuit. —N. Y. Evening Post.

Plantation Life in Louisiana Before the War.

In 1798, Jean Etienne Bore, with a gang of thirty negroes, raised a crop of cane, and sold its manufacture into brown sugar, and it for $12,000. This enterprise established the sugar industry firmly in Louisiana. The rich planters at once embarked in it, while the small planters of cotton and tobacco prospered by less competition. In five years from the time of its second introduction, 5,000,000 pounds of sugar was the annual yield of the colony, which had now some fifty or sixty thousand inhabitants. The income from the culture of sugar was about twenty-five per cent. Pontalba reports of the province about this time that "the facility with which man can supply his wants is such that two hours of daily labor are sufficient to procure him all the means of existence." One may judge from this statement the value of the slave system to the planter of that day. The average Southern negro, in his present condition of citizenship and individual responsibility, is the laziest of mortals, and will do no longer than is necessary to assure to him the gratification of to-day's wants. How much this state of things would have been aggravated in early Louisiana we can form some estimate; but we cannot grasp the extent to which it would have interfered with the brilliant career of the colony. As it was, the prosperity of Louisiana was marvelous despite the troubles existing between the colonists and the people of the United States, who looked upon the province with greedy eyes, and to whom the possession of it was only a matter of a few years at most. Life on the plantations trod in velvet-soled slippers, and the harshest winds were tempered with balmy warmth and the perennial fragrance of millions of wild flowers over which they were compelled to pass. Domestic ennui and their own strange combinations of character fostered in the fair sex the softer elements of romance, which were instrumental in imparting the knightly tone to the society of the day.

When the United States acquired possession of Louisiana, and for many years thereafter, New Orleans was the most luxurious city on the new continent. During the first half of this century a style of living was kept up in Louisiana which, in an attempt to picture it, becomes simply indescribable, and which if described would not be believed. The best wines of Europe flowed more freely than beer does to-day. The equipages were the finest the world could produce. The jewelers of New Orleans grew rich in a year on their commissions, while New York agents ransacked Europe for novelties in plate and artistic jewelry. The fine arts were largely patronized, although the effect of the atmosphere of slavery was to encourage tastes not consistent with a high degree of admiration for pure art. There is a massive service of gold in the safe of the St. Charles Hotel at New Orleans which recalls the splendor of ante-bellum Louisiana. Yet in all this luxurious display very little money was handled. Immense bills were paid at a time, but the transactions which took place on credit were enormous and went on for years in some cases without involving the introduction of a dollar. Old business men of New Orleans have assured me of repeated instances of this, and of the utter carelessness of these wealthy patrons in ordering on credit. But when the accounts of the tradesman or merchant were finally presented, the carelessness was even exceeded by the indifference with which the creditor met the gigantic total and paid the debt.

The earliest plantations were situated along the Mississippi south of the city, and many of them bear the name of the original French and Spanish owners, as Conception, Magnolia, St. Andrew's, etc. In many cases the planters' houses were massive structures, constructed on no particular architectural principle, with little attempt at finish or ornament, built of wood scarcely redeemed from its natural state of timber, but providing the amplest room for all household purposes. Few of them, indeed, there were which did not suggest the idea of space sufficient to meet all the requirements of the feudal baron, who slept under his castle roof an army of knights and vassals. The old Southern planter's notion of a comfortable home was a house with plenty of "elbow-room" in it. Other mansions were built of stone or brick, brought up or down the Mississippi, in a square, antique style of architecture, with great verandas, and massive Roman pillars—the outside of the structure being stuccoed and more or less ornamented. Beautiful flower gardens, in which were cultivated every variety of blooming plant obtainable, graced the front view of these great houses, and sometimes a tasteful garden might be so tastefully scattered about, and visible through the glistening spray of perpetual fountains. The style and situation of the planter's house has not changed much in a century, and a visitor to the sugar plantations in Louisiana to-day will see in this respect what he would have seen in the early part of the century. It is needless to say he will find changes in the social atmosphere and methods of life so contrasted. There is nothing left of the old days now, save in the memory of a few venerable linguists on the scene. —International Review.

His Stomach.

A Detroit surgeon whose reputation is first-class was seated in his office, when in walked a stranger who was followed by a dog. Without any fooling around, he began:

"Doctor, I have the dyspepsia."

"Yes, sir."

"Had it twenty-six years."

"Yes, sir."

"You can't cure it."

"No, sir."

"But you can make an exchange of stomachs between me and my dog."

"I believe it could be done, and both live."

"Will you guarantee that I won't have a hankering for old bones, if I trade stomachs?"

"No, sir."

"Will I want to chase rats?"

"Very likely."

"And snap at tramps?"

"Quite probable."

"Doctor, this is business."

"Yes, sir."

"And the exchange of stomachs is declared off."

"Very well."

"And I bid you good-day."

"Good-day, sir."

And the man whistled to his dog and walked out, without looking to the right or left.

A POPULAR TONIC

For Weak Lungs and Consumption. No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Cold, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitutions, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the endorsement of physicians or patients as the celebrated "John B. Gough's" Tonic. The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be added to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness, or the relief to be secured by the use of Tola, Rock and Rye. BRIEFLETS.

—Concordia masquerade to-night.

—Mrs. H. Merrill went to Milwaukee to-day, for a short visit.

—The Carreno operatic concert company are at the Myers house.

—The Sack Company hold their monthly meeting this evening.

—The Knights of Pythias work in the first and second degrees this evening.

—There is not enough winter about the weather to make overcoats a comfort.

—The greatest musical event of the season at the Opera house this evening.

—Past Grand Master Ticknor, of Illinois, is in the city attending the session of the Grand Encampment.

—A special meeting of Rock River En. campment No. 3, will be held this evening, for work in the third degree.

—Mrs. Charles A. Potter and her daughter, Mrs. Will Bowen, left for St. Louis yesterday. They will visit there two or three weeks.

—Mr. J. J. R. Pease and wife will leave for Texas in a few days, where they will visit Mr. Pease's brother, ex-Governor Pease, of that State.

—We regret to announce that Mr. J. W. Bintliff is confined to his room at the Grand hotel by hemorrhage of the lungs. He was a little improved to-day.

—Charlie Heimstreet, son of E. B. Heimstreet, fell in the river last night while at play, but was rescued before anything serious happened.

—Hon. J. W. Ostrander, of Jefferson, member of the Assembly, is in the city to-day, and is in attendance at the Patriarchal meeting in Odd Fellows hall.

—Mayor T. H. Brown, of Milwaukee is in attendance at the patriarchal meeting of Odd Fellows now in session in this city. He is registered at the Myers.

—The representatives of the Grand Encampment visited the cotton factory this forenoon, and were all well pleased to find so flourishing a manufacturing institution in our city.

—Madame Franzl arrived this afternoon with a large assortment of masks and costumes for the masquerade to be given by the Concordia society this evening at their hall.

—J. V. Jones and wife, of Oshkosh, are in the city, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Hayner. Mr. Jones is in attendance at the Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows.

—The funeral of Miss Kittie Koerner will take place to-morrow afternoon at one o'clock, at the home, at the foot of South 3d street. The remains will be taken to Emerald Grove for burial.

—The Concordia society will give a masquerade to-night, and it will be an entertainment of many attractions and much pleasure. The committee wish it understood that no indecent masks, costumes, actions or language, will be permitted. The price of tickets of admission is only 50 cents each.

—This is the way a news item appears when it is telegraphed a thousand miles from home, the item being taken from the Philadelphia Times: "John B. Gough the temperance lecturer, was attacked with neuralgia of the stomach while addressing an audience at Beloit, Wis., on Wednesday night. His condition is serious."

—Dr. S. L. Lord, of Edgerton, was in the city to-day and reports that there are numerous and severe cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever in the northwestern part of the county. He also brings the sad intelligence that Mr. W. F. Tonsley, editor of the Edgerton Reporter, is lying at the point of death of paralysis.

—The drama of "One Hundred Wives" will be produced here on Saturday night. The Philadelphia Times says of it when it was first given in that city: "One Hundred Wives" leaped into instantaneous popularity on the night of its initial performance, and not for years has a play stood the merciless criticism of a fastidious Philadelphia audience so creditably as did "One Hundred Wives."

—A dispatch from Green Bay says that Rev. H. Stone Richardson, of that place, formerly pastor of Court Street church, of this city, has entered into a sharp contest with the liquor dealers there, for the violation of the State and municipal ordinance, by keeping saloons open on Sunday. It was understood that complaints were to be made to-day, but the saloon men met on Saturday and effected an organization for the protection of mutual interest, and at the same time agreed to sell no liquor to minors nor to permit gaming of any sort Sundays. The temperance people accept this compromise measure, and the direct issue is avoided for the present.

—It is very rare so excellent a play, and popular actors visit Janesville as will appear at Lappin's Music hall in "Only a Farmer's Daughter." From every point follows them the report of enthusiastic and crowded houses. Housley, of Chicago, with whom they have just finished a week's engagement, says: "It has been the most profitable week of the season for this theater." Secure your seats early with out extra charge at Warren Collin's Music store, as there will surely be a crowded house.

—Some complaints have been made in regard to locking the doors of the Baptist church on Sunday night after the room became crowded, including the galleries, and also with chairs in the aisles. This was done to prevent many who were on the outside, from crowding in when the church was already filled to its utmost capacity. These complaints are based on the well taken grounds that a church, like other public buildings, is liable to take fire, and if such an event had happened on Sunday night with a crowded church, chairs in the aisles, and the doors locked, the result can better be imagined than described. The Gazette simply refers to this matter in compliance with public sentiment, and offers as a suggestion that in no public place, especially when there is a crowded room, should there be any fastening of doors or blocking of the aisles. The freest possible means of escape should be provided at all times, and the matter should never be neglected by those having public houses in charge.

The Weather.

REPORTED BY FRITZKE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

The thermometer this morning at seven o'clock stood 40 degrees above zero, and at one o'clock, at 45. Cloudy.

For the corresponding time last year the thermometer indicated 15 and 25 above zero.

WASHINGTON, February 7, 1 a. m.

The following are the indications for to-day:

Upper lake region—Colder, partly cloudy weather, light rains or snow, higher pressure, winds shifting to northwesterly.

The Mack Case.

District Attorney Sale informs as that it has been definitely settled that the Mack murder case will be continued till the next term of the Jefferson county court, which meets in September.

By consent of the counsel on both sides this continuance has been made. Mrs. Mack is out on $8,000 bail, which she furnished two years since, and is living with her three children at the home of her brother in the town of Turtle, where her mother also resides. Mrs. Mack is keeping very retired, although she is occasionally seen in the streets of Beloit attending to her business.

Tobacco Sales.

Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J. S. Gans' Son & Co., tobacco brokers, No. 131 Water street, New York, for the week ending Feb. 6, 1882:

150 cases, crop of 1880, New England wrappers, at 15 to 15 cents.

40 cases, crop of 1880, Pennsylvania, assorted lots at 11 cents to 31 cents.

34 cases, crop of 1880, Ohio, fillers, at 1 and 45 cents.

130 cases, crop of 1880, State pat.

20 cases, crop of 1880, Wisconsin seed and Havana at 34 to 11 cents.

Total cases, 1,254.

ODD FELLOWS.

The Annual Session of the Grand Encampment of the State.

The thirty-fourth annual session of the Grand Encampment of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows convened in Odd Fellows hall, in this city this afternoon, the roll being called, the follow grand officers were found to be in attendance.

Grand Patriarch—S. L. Brusted, of Fond du Lac.

Grand High Priest—Otto Laverenz, of Milwaukee.

Grand Senior Warden—W. S. C. Baron, of Richland Center.

Grand Scribe—L. B. Hulls, of Madison.

Grand Junior Warden—Charles Kendall, of Beloit.

Grand Representative—T. B. Elliot, of Milwaukee.

Grand Marshal—Joseph Schroeder, of Racine.

Grand Sentinel—E. S. Ballis, of Green Bay.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Nic Post, of Milwaukee.

There is a general attendance of representatives of the encampments throughout the State, as well as past officers of the same.

The Grand Encampment, after receiving the report of the Committee on Election, conferred the Grand Encampment degree on all present who were entitled to receive the same.

About one hundred and twenty-five representatives are present this afternoon, among whom are some of the best and ablest men in the State, and altogether they are a fine body. The work so far this afternoon has been confined to the filling of vacancies on committees, and conferring degrees.

Mr. C. A. Keith, of Webster, Massachusetts, reached Janesville last Friday, and is now engaged in putting up some of the machinery in the New McLean woolen mills. He represents Johnson & Bassett, of Worcester, Massachusetts, and is now setting up one of their self-operating jacks, or mule, for the new mill. It is 53 feet long, and in width covers a space of 13 feet upon the floor. This automatic, or self-operating jack, has 288 spindles, and has a one-third greater capacity than the similar machine in the old mill. It is regarded the very best jack machine in the United States, as it contains all the latest improvements. In the course of four or five weeks Mr. Keith will have the jacks in running order and in the meantime the looms and other parts of the machinery will be put in operation so that by spring, the mill will be ready for work.

Mr. Keith, who is a practical man in the line of woolen machinery, tells us that the New McLean mill will be one of the best of its size in the United States. It will compare most favorably with the best of that class of mills in the East, and is much better than a majority of them, because the building and the machinery are new, and the latter the best that can be made in this country.

'Only a Farmer's Daughter.'

In making mention of "Only a Farmer's Daughter," the greatest American play the New York Herald says: "Mr. Barnes has written a good play. It is one that will live, and if always given by a company as superior as the one forming the present combination, it will bring honor and profit to the author."

MILTON.

—The Cornet band will give their concert next Thursday evening, February 16 at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. The programme will include choice selections by the full brass and reed band, pleasing numbers by the sextette, artistic solos upon other instruments and a vocal solo, "Old Slady," in costume. The members have devoted much time and labor to the preparation of this entertainment, and deserve a liberal patronage from their friends. It is exclusively a band concert, and no one outside the organization will participate. The funds will be used in paying the necessary expense of the band in the way of instruction, music, &c. Admission 25 cents. Concert begins at 7:30. Come and bring your friends.

—The donation visit for Rev. W. T. Miller, on the evening of the 1st instant, was largely attended, and the evening was a very enjoyable one for all. The receipts amounted to nearly one hundred and thirty dollars, of which amount something over ninety dollars was a direct donation to the elder, the balance being applied on his salary.

—J. B. Anderson is handling considerable grain, chiefly barley.

—R. H. Saunders was in Brodhead, Thursday evening, furnishing clarinet music for a club dance. He has a regular engagement with Brown's orchestra of that place.

—The donation visit for Rev. E. M. Dunn at Morgan's hall, on Thursday evening, was a success in point of attendance, and the receipts reached the handsome sum of sixty-five dollars. There were a number of interesting speeches, and the evening was a pleasurable event for all who participated therein.

—The college cadets have decided to have another prize drill next month.

—Several our loads of poles have been cut on the farm of Orrin Sprague and hauled to this station for shipment to Chicago where they will be used for dock building. They are burr oak 20 to 30 feet in length.

—Agent Tomkins, is promised some long needed repairs on the office and waiting room of the depot at an early day. This is an improvement in which we are all interested, and one that has been needed for a generation, therefore there will be a season of rejoicing when the work is completed.

—Mrs. Day, of Janesville, the noted elocutionist, is to give an entertainment in College Chapel this Thursday evening. She will be assisted by the wonderful child violinist, Miss Wheeler, of Janesville, a youthful pianist, from Chicago, who is a prodigy, Mr. Wills, the noted Harmonica artist, and guitar accompanist.

Mrs. Day charmed all who heard her with the musical talent to assist her, will present a programme that none can afford to miss hearing.

—The failure of Gough to lecture in Janesville was a great disappointment here. A large delegation of Miltonians had arranged to go, but unfortunately only a few of the number had gone, when the dispatch announcing his non-appearance was received.

—H. H. Johnson, who has been stopping in New York State for a year or more, arrived in town Friday. He is looking as if Eastern air agreed with him.

—Miss E. L. Crandall commenced her seventeenth birthday by inviting a few of her friends to tea on Tuesday of last week. The guests regaled her with an elegant photograph album, taken of their respect and esteem. It was an enjoyable occasion for all concerned.
